“ Lou was my preceptor while I was in pharmacy school. He continued to be my mentor during the years I worked at the VA. (1974 1984) He had so many great stories. I was impressed about how many chemistry equations he remembered. He and Joe Saia tried to teach me a lot of Italian phrases. Lou was so patient and kind to me. Darrell Desch was the first pharmacy technician I worked with. Gruff but so nice. I have often told my own students that Lou set a high standard for preceptors. I wanted to let his family know that I certainly appreciated him while I worked at the VA.

“ To Shirley, Theresa, Melinda, Marcia and Tom. I offer my sincere sympathies on Lou's passing. He was a good friend and even better mentor and I benefited greatly by working with him. As everyone he had contact with knows, he was a joy to be around. He always had an interesting experience or story to share for every situation, meeting or encounter. I loved to hear him talk about his days growing up in the Bronx, his Dad's bar and the Yankees he met. He once reached into his wallet and pulled out a worn and torn picture of he and a couple of friends, probably taken in the early 50's. You have probably seen it many times. They were wearing trench coats and looked like characters from a Jack Kerouac novel. I remember feeling honored that we were good enough friends that he shared that with me.
I loved Lou's jokes and since I heard them many times they have become part of my vernacular, to share with whoever needs a good laugh. Even my wife Linda spouts some out occasionally. His overwhelming interest and love however was for you five, his wife and children. A more loving husband and prouder Father I have not yet met. I am including some photos of Lou and a few VA coworkers back during better days. This is how I want to remember him.

P.S. Thanks for letting us all know about the change in funeral plans. That was very considerate.

Now, do you remember the one about the two ladies on Bourbon street
