Hey I sure am sorry about the lose of your father. I've known you all for a long time and he was always nice to me. I remember when he sold me your Lincoln. And when he let me park my T/A at your house so my parents wouldn't find out 'til I worked up the nerve to tell my parets. I also remember the talks we had about priting, and how it gets in yourour blood, once you do it. It seems that is all you want to do for a career. Once again Im sorry and call if there is anything we can do, love Ivan

“ Anthony, sorry for your loss. I am glad you had the opportunity to get to know your dad. Everything seemed so much simpler when we were kids didn't it. Jeff

“ I know they missed seeing each other in their later years and now they are all together again -Dad, Uncle Dee and now Uncle Dwayne. Dad never quit worrying about his "little" brothers. It's tough dealing with the loss, but now they are all at peace and free of worldly cares - and we'll see them all again at some point in time. Take care. Chris
