“ Oh second momma Janice:) I remember being 11 or so and being down at the rail yard being vandals and trying to score track signals and flares... whatever we could get really... I had my little brother with me and he was my baggage. We ran when the railroad cops came and Phil & I dashed toward I-70 and I fell on a track sign and the bolt went through my knee cap but I pulled it off and me and Phil got across I-70 to freedom. We walked to Aunt Janice's and she was on the porch with maybe Traci? I came up to show her my injury and she took my bandana (cool skater dudes wore those around our ankles then) and tied it tight around my knee... "yer good to go kiddo!" Like that I was fixed:) Back in the game! I will miss ya Aunt Janice.
