“ My baby girl one of the happiest days of my life was the moment I found out I was going to be a mama. You gave me life the day you were born. I had a purpose in life to be your mommy. I don't think I'll ever understand why God called you home because half of me went with you. Thank you for all the love you shared. Always ,your mommy my precious child 💔

“ I'm am so sorry for this family's loss. Michelle was my neighbor on Watson and I watched her grow up along with her brothers and then her children. She was a very good friend to my son. He practically lived at their house. I know she will be missed. God bless this family and my prayers are with you all.

“ I met you when you shared your beautiful, wonderful and loving children with me in my classroom. I saw the love you (and your family) poured out on them everyday. I pray they feel the love of others pouring on them now at this difficult time. Mrs. Bryan

“ So... this is sad, strange and heartbreaking on many levels to me. I met Michelle a random night in May playing the game Among Us online. I had been playing with random people for like a month and one night we ended up playing for a long time along a couple other people. At some point Aye (as she went by) told me and a couple others that we should join the Discord group she was on and I decided to do so. Fast forward to today, I've made many good friends thanks to that little unplanned interaction. Even though we never talked too much, she was always a positive energy and someone I enjoyed sharing games and brief online moments with; her sense of humour being a highlight that I'll always remember. If it hadn't been for her that random night, I would never have met a ton of awesome, lovely people from all over the globe I now have the pleasure of calling friends, and for that I'll always be grateful. My deepest condolences to all her family and close friends.

Thank you for everything, Michelle, I'll always remember you.

I met Michelle, or “Aye” as I knew her, through Discord playing Among Us. We had several fun times playing together, but some of my favorite were playing with Aye and her daughter or her telling off some poor soul who got rude with one of her friends!

“ Michelle,
I don't quite know what to say here but I'll try. This is a hurt like I've never known. There was something about the way you'd look at me whenever I would tell one of my stupid jokes and you'd tell me I'm an idiot or, on rare occasions, actually laugh.. It was always so good coming from you. Now, nobody will get it when I randomly say "Not Mother?" I just want my big sister to come back here and argue with me about trivial things like only you could.. I know we had our differences on a few things but I hope you knew I looked up to you and I was proud to be your big little brother. I love you and I'll miss you

“ I met you in 5th grade! You had a ponytail and a Garth Brooks shirt on... I had on red jeans and a baseball jersey on.... Almost 30 years later I would give anything to go back to that... My first fight I ever got into was for you (yes chelle I am going to tell this story. I see your 😬 from here) You didn't want to play someone in tether ball so I traded places with you, and the girl got mad and scratched my face. So we fought... What I wouldn't give to be on the playground with you right now...

“ *My dearest friend,
How do I even start. We have so many memories from cruising Wanamaker to just hanging out in the front yard at mommas. I know life got busy for the both of us and we didn't talk as much but that didn't mean I didn't think of you often. I will miss you more than you will ever know. One day we will see each other again. So this isn't goodbye just a see you later.*

“ *My Dearest Best Friend,
Life will truly never be the same for any of us.
Who will I call now? Who will call me for that matter. I can't share a single memory....
There are far to many. The impact you made on my life cannot be put into words. I love you so very much bff. I'm broken shattered and missing you. I pray mom, dad, the boys, and the kids heal. I will never forget you. (also I won't have another best friend I know how you felt about that lol)*
