“ I first met Steve on the golf course in the early 1990's. I was told he was from Texas. In Kansas, we have this image of Texan's as loud, stubborn, opinionated and everything to them is bigger & better in Texas.

Well, Steve might have had just a few of those personality traits but we quickly learned to dish it right back at him. We loved to razz each other about anything and in the process became good friends. I admired the fact that you never wondered where Steve stood on a subject - he would always let you know.

We also learned new phrases like "all you all" and "git your roll out" and we had a great time on the golf course and many golfing road trips.

On one of those trips we discovered another one of Steve's bigger attributes - his appetite. At a seafood restaurant in Myrtle Beach, Steve ordered some oysters - the waitress asked him "Do you want them fried or on the half shell".

Steve said "Yes" She said - "which one" He said I'll have both and proceeded to down every one of them and polish off an entree to boot

I think it is only proper that his beloved Texas Longhorns are #1 in the College football polls and he was able to see them beat their hated rival Oklahoma.

Finally, there was a part of Steve that really was bigger and better and that was his heart. He genuinely cared about his family & friends and would do anything possible to help them if they needed it.

I feel lucky to have known him and we will miss you partner.
